

1 The Barefoot Home

FEATURES

Aristo Classics

- Woodmode Brookhaven kitchen cabinets
- Glass kitchen display cabinets to ceiling
- Professional quality stainless steel range and hood
- Large kitchen island with granite top & hand carved corbels
- Delta MS waterproofing around foundation walls
- Poured solid concrete foundation
- Natural white oak flooring

Specific Craftsmanship

- Stained wood beam in great room
- Bead board and coffers on ceiling in dining room
- Thick walls and rounded corners for a classic look
- Dramatically oversized base moldings
- Classic ceiling forms
- Detailed trim work throughout

Special Touches

- 42" wide front door
- Majestic three sided stone fireplace to ceiling
- State of the art home theatre
- Interactive ipod home audio system
- Faux painting and wall textures

creative neighborhoods classic homes

The Aristo Company

designer

Webster Interiors,
Ric Thomann,
261-0598

furnishings

Webster Interiors,
Ric Thomann,
261-0598

sales

Jennifer Haralambides
738-0066

architect

Carini Designs
223-6420

landscaping

Rochester
Landscaping,
Jeff Falco,
352-6204

DESIGN

Our home is "Barefoot".

We expect openness and informality in a vacation home, yet many of us put up with an everyday home that is much more formal and structured than we are.

A casual, relaxed, even laid-back atmosphere is the main characteristic of a Barefoot home. A Barefoot floor plan is simple. All the spaces are used every day, there are no formal rooms set aside strictly for special occasions. In our house, spaces flow uninterrupted between the living room, dining room, and great room through generous openings. There is little need for long hallways; hence the simplicity and compactness of the floor plan.

Size is important - we have built exactly enough space. Just enough to feel bright, airy, and spacious, but still cozy and practical. It's psychological; knowing you have less to maintain, less to clean, less to repair and replace, you're more apt to feel relaxed and at ease with

THE BUILDER

At The Aristo Company, we understand that we are only as good as our Building Process. Our dedication to building luxury homes, and creating a luxury experience shows in our daily operations and our organization. Because we're a small business...as we create your home it becomes our finest work...and we take pride in that. Our entire staff is always available during the building process and for years after. Stacey Haralambides, our builder, has been living in his communities for the last 20 years.

Everyone says, when you walk into an Aristo custom home it "feels right" and shows obvious quality. Our talented team offers exciting, cutting-edge designs that will undoubt-yourself... "More like vacation".

Our Barefoot home does not ignore the environment. We have captured open spaces, but not too open. Energy efficiency is a practical concern that cannot be overlooked. Not only is our home Energy Star rated, we also finished the guest spaces in the lower level. These spaces are naturally insulated, and maintain temperatures far better than a two-story space. By utilizing the lower level; we use less energy and fewer materials, putting the money saved into the perks of your daily life.

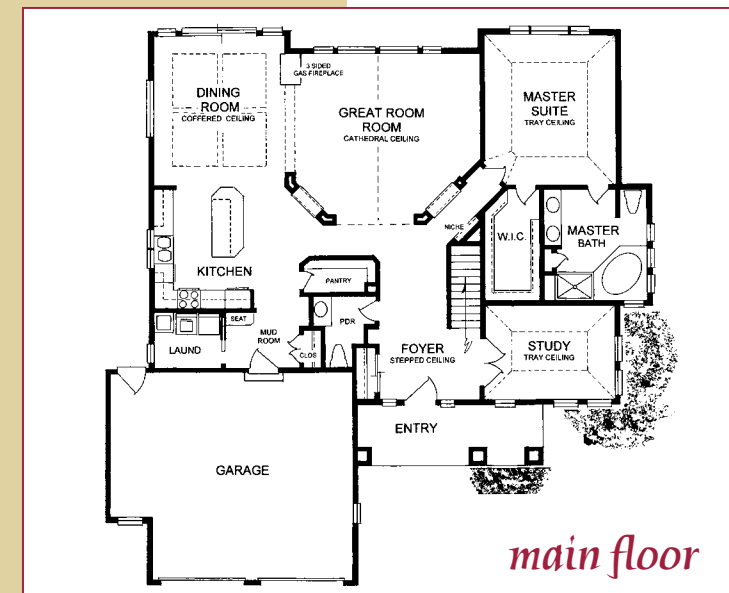

"If anything, it's the simple vacation homes that have the most to teach us about how to make every day homes more relaxed, comfortable, and delightful... We don't see why the people with beach cottages and summer cabins should have all the fun!"

Marc Vassallo "The Barefoot Home"

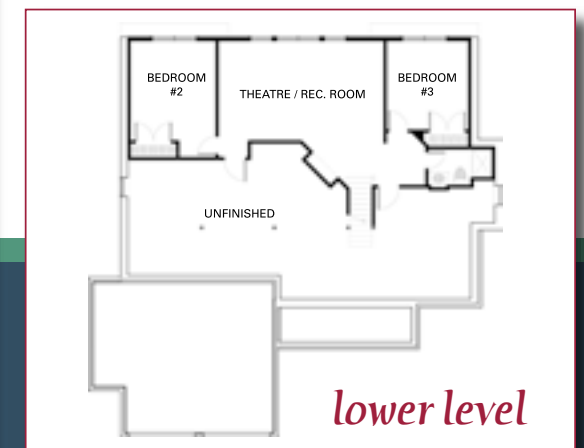

edly enhance your design/build experience. Whether modest or elaborate, every home receives the same focused attention and utilizes the same premium materials. We pride ourselves in creating rooms with style and refinement.

Building a home should be interactive and holistic. You should expect to personally work with the architect to realize your vision of a home. You should also expect your architect to stay involved throughout its creation. Finding a builder who is also an Architect is a rare opportunity to make your home an exclusive work of art. Committed to superior architectural design, Aristo is dedicated to every detail in the creation of each new home, from concept to closing.

Discover more about us, our residential communities, or about building on your site at www.aristo.cc. Click on our Design Development Process for everything you need to know before building your home... here, there, or anywhere.

main floor

lower level

